
Setting up your website

Posted by axoi - 2006/01/31 12:49

I am trying to get a website set up for my company. I do these for others all the time, I suppose its time to do my own.

I know that link pop is important. Does anyone have a good list of places to submit for listing a graphic design company?

Thanx

=====

Places you will be seen

Posted by scum - 2006/02/02 11:18

Link pop is very important, but I would concentrate on submitting to lists in which you'll actually be seen. List links are god, but not super useful

Look for websites that list designers by area, find your and make sure you have a listing. I get 10-20 hits a week form random sources. A lot of these sites are kind of ugly, so choose carefully and check the pagerank before swapping links.

Good luck

=====

Re: Setting up your website

Posted by nikon - 2006/02/08 09:53

I am trying to get a website set up for my company. I do these for others all the time, I suppose its time to do my own.

I know that link pop is important. Does anyone have a good list of places to submit for listing a graphic design company?

Thanx

I get a few click a month from freelancedesigners. Check out listings there
<http://www.freelancedesigners.com/>

=====